

“FPL has had a long-standing partnership with our community. They provided the power that helped fuel our space program and the many innovations that put the Space Coast on the map. Today, they continue in that great tradition with the opening of this state-of-the art Clean Energy Center. This is another giant step into the future for the Space Coast.”

Commissioner Robin Fisher

“FPL understands how what’s good for the environment is also good for our local economy. The company has thoughtfully designed this new plant to minimize the impact on the environment. The new plant has half the carbon emissions as the old plant, which means cleaner air and a better quality of life for all who live and visit Brevard County.”

Maureen Rupe, president of Brevard Partnership for a Sustainable Future

“A clean, reliable, affordable electrical infrastructure is critical to attracting businesses and jobs to our community. FPL’s Cape Canaveral Next Generation Clean Energy Center is an important selling point for Florida’s Space Coast community.”

Lynda Weatherman, president, Economic Development Commission of Florida’s Space Coast.
